CIVIL DEFENSE EMERGENCY HOSPITAL PROGRAM

The Civil Defense Emergency Hospitals listed in this book are completely functional 200-bed hospitals, packed in boxes and stored in communities throughout the United States. They are designed to be set up in existing buildings as soon as possible after a disaster in order to provide austere but adequate medical care to the disaster victims.

CDEH's are assigned to States in accordance with formal Federal-State agreements based on authority contained in the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950 (Public Law 920, 81st Congress) as amended, Executive Order 10958 of August 14, 1961, and Executive Order 11001 of February 16, 1962. The hospitals may be used in a major disaster only under the authority defined in Public Law 920.

The supplies and equipment contained in the CDEH can be used to expand the capability of existing community hospitals or to establish a completely independent hospital with the following sections: admitting and triage (sorting), wards, operating rooms, X-ray, laboratory, pharmacy, and central supply which includes preparation, sterilization and stores subsections. There are generators for auxiliary power, should the local electrical supply be disrupted, and a 1,500 gallon water tank with pumping unit for emergency water supply. A supply of medical and administrative record forms is also included.

The CDEH's now pre-positioned were designed with an operational capability of 3 to 4 days. They are currently being expanded, however, to a 30-day capability by increments termed Supply Additions from the Emergency Medical Stockpile Depots and through new procurement. The expanded hospitals require approximately 7,280 gross cubic feet of storage space. A minimum of 15,000 square feet of floor space is required to set up the hospital at its operating location.

The pre-positioned CDEH's are inspected and serviced periodically to insure that the supplies are usable and that the equipment is operable.
